LOCAL MERCHANTS ENJOY BANQUET

The largest and most enthusiastic crowd in the history of the Daly City Merchants' Association met last Wednesday evening at the City Hall, where the regular monthly meeting of the Association was held, and afterwards assembled at a banquet prepared by the entertainment committee.

The problem of widening Mission street and San Jose avenue at Daly City and Colma so overshadows every other matter of interest that it is now the main topic of discussion both in and out of meetings. The interest has spread to other organizations, such as the Excelsior Merchants' Association, and the Southern League of Civic Clubs of San Francisco, and others, all of whom are co-operating with the Daly City organization and city and county officials in furthering the improvement. The main difficulty at the present moment is to get an appropriation of the necessary funds, which amounts to anywhere from a million to a million and a half of dollars and no provision having been made for it in the biennial budget of the State Highway Commission, or elsewhere. It is hoped that by letting some less important improvement in some other part of the state wait, Daly City may be able to get the money now and the work will proceed promptly.

A letter from Governor James Rolph, in which he expressed in no uncertain terms his willingness to assist the committee to the fullest extent of his ability was read, and it was decided to go to Sacramento on Friday, March 6, and meet the Governor, and make arrangeements for further meetings later.

Professor James Ferguson of the Jefferson Union high school was present in the interest of the school children and asked the Association to work for the building of underpasses at the schools and elsewhere for the protection and safety of the school children crossing Mission street. Dr. Rankin also made a strong plea for the same protection.

At the banquet a number of addresses were made, among those who addressed the gathering being Arthur E. Hall of the Mission Merchants' Association, Mayor H. H. Smith, Fred A. Steinman, Louis Depaoli, and a number of others.

After listening to the music and speeches and partaking of the refreshments until a late hour, the meeting closed with the general expression that it was the largest and most enthusiastic meeting ever held by the Daly City Merchants' Association.

The entertainment committee are looking for a place to hold the annual picnic of the Merchants' Association, which will be some time in June or July, and will, no doubt, be looked forward to with pleasant anticipation by the people of Daly City.

The next regular meeting will be held on Wednesday, April 1, at the City Hall auditorium, at 8 P. M. Business men and merchants should lose no time in affiliating with this organization. All are welcome to the meetings.

W. H. CLAY, Secretary.

SILVER WEDDING CELEBRATED BY MR. AND MRS. V. CONCI

Mr. and Mrs. V. Conci, of Parkview avenue, celebrated their silver wedding anniversary last Saturday evening, two hundred friends and relatives enjoying this well known couple's hospitality. Dancing was enjoyed in the home of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. P. Conci, next door. Music was furnished for the dancing by an orchestra which included Virgil Casanova and Roy Scramalga. A delicious buffet supper was served at a late hour. Both of the Conci homes were artistically decorated for the occasion. The guests departed wishing their host and hostess many more happy years together.

LONGFELLOW P. T. A. PROGRAM

Mrs. Carl Springer, first vice-president of the Second District C. C. P. T., has been invited to speak at the Fathers' Night meeting of the Longfellow P. T. A., to be held on Thursday, March 12, at 7:45 P. M., in the school auditorium. A short business meeting will preceed the program, and the nominating committee will be elected for the selection of officers for next term. Judge George J. Steiger, Jr., and Mr. Robert S. Gray will speak, and the 4-B grade will present a play. Also a one act sketch will be given by some of the members of the Longfellow unit. There will be stunts by the Boy Scouts under the direction of Mr. Davis, Scoutmaster. A most cordial invitation is extended to the "Fathers" to attend this meeting.

JEFFERSON UNION HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

On last Wednesday evening the Daly City Merchants' Association voted unanimously in favor of underpasses across Mission street, in connection with the widening of the street. Principal James Ferguson was one of the invited guests, and strongly urged constructing underpasses as a means of safety for school children who have to cross Mission street going to and from school. Dr. Rankin also urged the association to make a definite demand for underpasses. He said that the life of one child was of infinitely greater value than the cost of such an undertaking. Mr. Ferguson said that the high school board had taken formal action in the matter and had appointed Mr. Andrew Vireno, who is one of the high school trustees as well as the president of the Daly City Merchants' Association, to press the matter before the committee of San Francisco and San Mateo supervisors that has charge of the undertaking. In urging the need of the underpasses, Mr. Ferguson also called attention to the fact that just recently one of the high school students was killed on her way to school, and that in all probability the accident would not have occurred if there had been a sidewalk with curb along the street at the place of the accident. He, therefore, urged the need of constructing sidewalks all along Mission street.

Last Monday afternoon President Truman Bentley of the Jefferson Union high school board of education, in company with Principal James Ferguson, visited the athletic grounds of Burlingame high school for the purpose of seeing the details of construction of the dug-outs on the baseball fields. At Burlingame they had an opportunity to see the value of such equipment during the acutal playing of a game. Burlingame High and San Mateo Junior College teams were the contestants.

The Senior class of the high school is having two dug-outs constructed on the baseball grounds. They are located in the banks on the east and north sides of the field, and being of concrete construction will be a permanent improvement. They are of standard size and will accommodate both players and substitutes of the visiting teams as well as the home team.

Coach Biaggini is spending his Saturdays working with the boys on the high school athletics grounds, laying pipe to carry water to the baseball diamond. The job is being done according to an approved plan which provides for the watering of the entire field. He has also begun work on the track around the football field. Soon Jefferson should be represented in all outdoor athletic activities.

Jefferson students had an opportunity to listen to a program over the radio given by the National Education

JOHN MURPHY HONOR GUEST AT BIRTHDAY CELEBRATION

Mr. and Mrs. J. Swan, of Peoria street, entertained a group of friends last Saturday at a dinner given in honor of John Murphy, to celebrate his birthday. The following group of Mr. Murphy's friends sat down at 12 o'clock noon to a most delicious dinner, prepared for the occasion by Mrs. Swan: The guests from Petaluma included Mr. and Mrs. James Ferris, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Jacobsen, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Cowan and daughter Miss Grace Jacobsen, Mr. and Mrs. James Flemming. The guests from Berkeley included Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Watkins, and Miss Gladys Jacobsen; from San Mateo, Miss M. McClelland; from Lodi, Mr. and Mrs. Sordez; from San Francisco, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Storey, Mr. and Mrs. James Whiteside, Mr. and Mrs. L. McNabb, Mr. and Mrs. G. Gallagher, Mr. E. McGuiness, Bob Taylor, William Campbell, and John Murph, and the Misses Jane Gray and Ray Spence. The guests from Daly City were Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Weaitt and son William and daughters Ruth and Emily, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Swan, Ernest Swan and Mildred Swan. The assembled guests spent a most delightful day.

BURGLARS ENTER SCHOOL

Mrs. Ella Loomis, principal of the Woodrow Wilson school at Santa Barbara avenue, reports that burglars entered the school room some time between Friday, February 27, at 3:30 P. M., and Monday, March 2, at 8 A. M., and ransacked the desks. The robbery was reported to Chief of Police Doyle last Monday.

ASK PRIORITY FOR DISTRESSED VETS

Only veterans in immediate need should apply now for the 50 per cent loan on the face value of their bonus certificates is the appeal being broadcasted to every Legionnaire in California by B. W. Gearhart, State Commander of the American Legion.

"There are many veterans in actual poverty," says Gearhart, "and these men should be given the first opportunity to receive their loans. Veterans who are not in distress should defer their applications until a later date as the Veterans' Bureaus are being taxed to capacity to take care of the applications from men who actually need the money at the present time."

Every Legion Post in California is to become a service center to assist veterans in obtaining loans, according to James K. Fisk, state adjutant. Application blanks are being sent to all Posts and the commanders are being instructed to give those ex-service men in dire circumstances priority in filing of applications.

Loans cannot be made on certificates less than two years old, according to advices received by Fisk from Stanley H. Connor, regional manager of the San Franicsco office of the Veterans' Bureau. Where loans have been previously made applications must be made to the Veterans' Bureau making the original loan. In cases where loans have been obtained from banks these certificates are in Washington and the applications must be sent there.

The form to be filled out is known as the "Veteran Note." Those who have not borrowed on their certificate must present them to the Veterans' Bureau with an accompanying statement that they have not been borrowed on before, together with the note and certificate of identification properly filled out.

Veterans who have previously obtained money on their certificates only have to fill out the note, disregarding the certificate of identification, attach their "pink slip" and either mail or present it to the Veterans' Bureau having made the previous loan. All loans are being handled by the various bureaus as they are recived. According to Connor it is not necessary to inquire further regarding the loan once it is received by the bureau. Checks will be mailed to the veterans as soon as it is physically possible to check the data and make them out.

SEVENTY GUESTS PARTICIPATE IN HOUSE-WARMING PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Rudolph gave a house-warming at their home, 341 Winchester street, over seventy guests partaking of their hospitality. In honor of George Washington's birthday the home was tastefully decorated with the national colors by Mrs. Ruth Oppenshaw, of Knowles avenue, Anita Gray, Miss Bertha Glazier and Mrs. Rudolph. A large table was spread in the basement with plenty of refreshments, and a good time was enjoyed until 7 o'clock Sunday morning. The music was furnished by two piano players, Mr. Fred Smith and Mr. Charles Randall and the Royal Hawaiian trio, consisting of Mr. E. Aguila, Jennie Tye and Victor Red. Mr. Vincent, of Daly City, presented some special numbers on his accordion.

TO PLANT TREES IN BURBANK'S HONOR

A state-wide tree planting program for March 7 as a tribute to the memory of Luther Burbank is urged by Governor James Rolph, Jr.

The Governor also endorses the program of State Forester M. B. Pratt for the protection of California's forests during the approaching fire season, and calling upon every citizen of the state to become "forest-minded" by planting trees of their own. This, he points out, leads to the exercise of caution while traveling or camping in forest areas.

The Governor's statement follows:

"The eighty-second anniversary of the birth of Luthern Burbank will be celebrated in California on March 7.

"Every Californian should, in some way, aid in the proper observance of this anniversary of the famous plant scientist.

"The most fitting of all memorials is a living one—a tree. Every individual can plant a tree. Chambers of commerce, civic organizations, womens' clubs, men's clubs, boys' clubs, can plant groups of trees.

"I have personally planted thousands of trees on my place in San Mateo and Santa Clara counties. I have a lath house containing thousands of baby trees grown from seeds, and expect eventually to plant them all.

"Luther Burbank loved trees. At his home in Santa Rosa he devoted his life to the planting and improvement of trees, flowers and shrubs. He now lies buried under the famous Cedar of Lebanon, which he planted himself from a seed brought from the Holy Land.

"What finer tribute, then, on the part of the individual, the organization, the community, the state, than the planting of trees, flowers and plants as memorials to Luther Burbank?

"In the symbolism of a tree, Burbank can best be remembered. Deep-rooted in the ground, a tree is like a man, coming up out of the earth, but lifting its branches to heaven. As it grows in usefulness, so it grows in beauty. It may outlast the ages, offering its shade and comfort to many generations.

"So a tree bespeaks the spirit of Luther Burbank. He was unstinting in his services, regal in his leadership, commanding in his principles, and he left California and the world a heritage in trees and flowers that will last forever.

"Therefore, I wish to call upon every citizen of California to plant one or more trees on Arbor day, March 7, as a living memorial to the greatest of plant scientists, Luther Burbank."

TENDERED FAREWELL PARTY

A group of ladies from Daly City, accompanied by a few others, attended a farewell party last Saturday which was tendered Mrs. George Harris, of Rotterick street, who is leaving there to make her future home in Napa county. There were two tables of Dutch whist. A very pleasant afternoon of cards and delicious refreshments was enjoyed by the following guests: Mrs. L. Light, Mrs. Powers, of San Francisco, Mrs. B. Cinnamond, of Oakland, Mrs. M. White, Mrs. Welsch, Mrs. J. Cliver, Mrs. George Putney, all of Daly City, and Mrs. George Harris.

PREPARING FOR TANFORAN MEET

Promising young thoroughbreds owned by Charles T. Boots are now being prepared for the Tanforan meeting to open Tuesday, March 31. He has the band over at Pleasanton and is in personal direction of their conditioning for the races. A recent inspection of the runners convinced well qualified critics that the "babies" are much above the ordinary.

Elmwood Stock Farm, near Milpitas, where the Boots two-year-olds were foaled, has been continuously a nursery of runners since the eighteen fifties, having been founded by William Boots, father of "Charley." Its record in sending out winners to the important courses of the country would be hard to surpass.

"Charley" Boots has long been a successful breeder. Fans still talk of the prowess of the sons and daughters of Brutus, grandson of the Epsom Derby winner Macaroni. Lately he achieved renown through his rearing of the progeny of imported War Cry, son of the Epsom Derby winner Sunstar. Awhile back he disposed of War Cry to John W. Marchbank, and the well known sire is now holding court at Heather Farm.

Ever on the alert for good blood, Boots purchased imported Brig O'Doon several years ago, and a stallion of the individuality and strains of this fellow is well worth giving a thorough trial. The first of the "Brigs" will be seen under colors at the Tanforan meet. The breeder is even hopeful of having another Peter the Great, an Elmwood colt that made turf history in the old days.

Brig O'Doon is of the ever popular Bend Or line. He is by the succesful sire Bridge of Earn, a great grandson of Bend Or through Cyllene and Bona Vista. St. Simon, the undefeated, is not so much heard of nowadays on the top line of fashionable pedigrees, but his blood is much in demand on the distaff side, just where "Brig" has it, being out of a daughter of St. Simon's son St. Eruskin.

Trials at Pleasanton indicate the youngsters of the imported horse can run as their conformation would suggest, and it would not be surprising if they carried their speed over a route, as their breeding promises.

PARTY IN CELEBRATION OF TWENTY-FIRST BIRTHDAY

On Saturday, February 28, Miss Martha Johnson, of Westlake avenue, was hostess at a surprise party given in honor of Mr. Phillip Hass, in celebration of his twenty-first birthday. The evening was spent in dancing, singing and cards. At 11 o'clock delicious refreshments were served on a table artistically decorated. A pirate idea was carried out; place cards were sparkling silver scarabs with gold handles. These were led by silver and green ribbon to a chest in the center of the table, the chest containing sacks of "pieces of eight." For the ladies there were corsages of cyclamen and maidenhair ferns, while for the gentlemen there were pirate hats trimmed with gallant feathers. Two stately green candles guarded the chest. The evening was an enjoyable one for all and a most pleasant surprise for the guest of honor.

The following guests were present: Mr. and Mrs. Charles McKee, Jr., Misses Florence Manuels, Eva Johnson, Ethel Miller, Bertha Willett, Helen Smeed, Florence Kennedy, Martha Johnson, Beatrice Clark, Florence Witcosky, and Jeannette Olson; Messrs. Frank Fuller, Earl Clark, Harold Johnson, Ralph Metzger, Elmer Ahl, Norman Kennedy, Phillip Hass, Frank Leary, Oz Storm and Ralph Johnson.

GRAND PRESIDENT PAYS VISIT TO EL CARMELO PARLOR

Grand President Mrs. Estelle Evans paid her official visit to El Carmelo Parlor No. 181, N. D. G. W., on Wednesday evening, March 4.

The ritualistic work was exemplified perfectly and the two candidates who became members of El Carmelo, as well as all assembled guests, were deeply impressed. The candidates were Mrs. Rose Mohr, mother of Vice-President Evelyn Bemis, and Miss Mary Zipser, niece of Charter President Margaret Steele.

Interesting talks were delivered by Grand President Evans, Grand Vice-President Evelyn I. Carlson, Grand Trustee Anna Thueson, Grand Organist Lola Horgan, Past Grand President Margaret Grate-Hill, Supervising D. D. G. P. Ida Mesquite, and D. D. G. P. Rena Mathias and Mrs. Pauline Quirolo, who organized El Carmelo twenty-one years ago. Following the meeting, delicious refreshments were served to about one hundred members and visitors, in the banquet room.

BOARD CONSIDERS SEWER PROBLEM

The proposed $126,000 sewer district in the north end of San Mateo county, to include San Bruno, Lomita Park, Caupchino, and part of South San Francisco, will be lost unless banks and loan companies approve proceeding with the project under the Mattoon act, it developed at the meeting of the board of supervisors last Monday.

Advertising of bids, ordered three weeks ago, has been held up by Attorney John W. Coleberd of South San Francisco, because of strong oppostion to Mattoon act proceedings. Attorney Coleberd and R. A. Rapsey, city attorney of San Bruno, are negotiating for loans from the banks on the property involved in the proceedings.

A threat to throw out the entire proceedings to date unless the banking interests approve procedure under the Mattoon act and the title companies will give an insurance title policy if the act is used, was made by Supervisor Thomas Hickey of South San Francisco.

Argument on the matter and advertising for bids was continued two weeks, on motion of Supervisor Hickey, in order to give the banks and other interests time to reach a decision.

A large delegation of South San Francisco and San Bruno business men and property owners were present to protest sewer work, but their protests were not heard because of the adoption of Hickey's motion.

John H. Dennis, who owns a private sewer system in the Colma area, has filed a suit in Federal court against San Mateo county, charging that the new sewer the county is constructing in the north end has injured his business. He asked that he be reimbursed for the sum of $10,000, and that the county be restrained from further construction of the sewer. The board referred the matter to the district attorney.

Lengthy argument was held over assessment of $4,000 against property owners in the Emerald Lake dam district, sought by the Emerald Lake Country Club. A group of property owners protested that they would not shoulder the country club's assessment unless the club filed a declaration that they have the untrammeled right to use Emerald Lake and other facilities. They were supported by Supervisor John W. Poole of Redwood City, who said final action would be taken at the next meeting.

Temporary transfer of funds to the county farm and road district funds, renewal of insurance on cash and negotiable securities held in the treasurer's vault, and annexation of Park fire district was voted. There were no protests in the last.

A petition to annex territory to the Menlo sanitary district was set for hearing on March 9, and a protest that the septic tank at the county poor farm was overflowing, causing an unhealthful condition for the inmates, was referred to County Health Officer F. Holmes Smith for investigation.

SURPRISE PARTY

Friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. Talmedge to wish Mr. Talmedge a happy birthday last Saturday evening. The surprise was genuine. All enjoyed the evening of dancing and stunts. Lunch was served in a most delightful manner, the table being decorated in green and white. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. W. Owens, Mr. and Mrs. J. Moos, Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Jorgensen, Mr. and Mrs. R. Orr, Mr. and Mrs. H. Prziborowski, and Mr. and Mrs. H. Petersen.

"TOM SAWYER" COMING TO THE DALY CITY THEATRE

Anyone who is searching for coincidences will find one in a study of the careers of Jackie Coogan and Mitzi Green, American's leading child actors, who will be seen in "Tom Sawyer," at the Daly City Theatre, Friday and Saturday, March 13 and 14.

The parents of both children are stage folks, and the two youngsters did their first theatrical work at the age of four.

Jackie's father was appearing with Annette Kellerman, famous swimmer, on the vaudeville stage when the boy was four. Coogan did eccentric dances between Miss Kellerman's exhibitions. Miss Kellerman was impressed with Jackie's back-stage impersonations, and one evening called him onto the stage to do a little act. He wound up his appearance with a "shimmy dance." Charles Chaplin was in the audience and insisted that the Coogans permit him to use Jackie in a picture. It became known as "The Kid," and Jackie was an overnight sensation.

Mitzi's parents were appearing in vaudeville as Joe Keno and Rosie Green when Mitzi was four. On the bill was Sadie Burt, and Mitzi mimicked this actress' telling of a story. Miss Burt was so amused at the child's work that she led Mitzi onto the stage one evening for her debut.

Two years later, Keno and Green were on the same bill with Moran and Mack at Brighton Beach, N. Y. The same week, an actor's benefit was given at Freeport, Long Island, and when Mitzi saw some children on the program, she wanted to do a skit on the two Black Crows. With her father, she worked up an impromptu act. A vaudeville scout saw the child and signed her for a prolonged tour. This brought her to Los Angeles, where she entered the motion pictures.

In "Tom Sawyer," which is a faithful filmization of the Mark Twain classic, Jackie plays the part of Tom and Mitzi is seen and heard as Becky Thatcher.

Association at their convention in Detroit, Wednesday, February 25. The program was as follows: "Lengthening the Life Span Through Education," an address by James E. Rogers, Secretary, Department of School Health and Physical Education, National Education Association. Mr. Hobson, chairman of the League of Nations Narcotics Committee, spoke on "Fighting the Drug Evils of Mankind." The well known head football coach of the University of Illinois, Robert C. Zuppke, gave an address on "School Sports and Health." The Junior high school boys' chorus of Detroit and the All-City string quartet furnished both vocal and instrumental music for the program.

The following notice was posted on the bulletin board last week:

"Students: Complaints have been made to the police department that Jefferson Union high school students violate the law by speeding when on the way to school. I have been asked to call your attention to this and to request that you keep strictly within the speed limit when going to and from school. The speed limit is 15 miles per hour in Daly City during school hours.

JAMES FERGUSON, Principal."

This notice was written because of the way speeders and reckless drivers go around causing accidents by their recklessness.

Mr. Ferguson also called a special assembly to warn the students personally of the dangers of reckless driving and gave several incidents that would serve to warn students that reckless driving does not pay.

Mr. Ferguson then dismissed the girls and gave an earnest talk to the boys about behaving like gentlemen and being careful about their language both on the athletic grounds and elsewhere. He reminded the students that each one owed it to the name he bore, to act in a manner becoming a gentleman. "A thoughtless act," he said, "may bring shame to your family and to your school and to your community." He urged the students to keep their language clean both on the athletic grounds and elsewhere. "A gentleman never uses vulgar or profane language under any conditions whatever," he said.

To bear out Mr. Ferguson's words of warning regarding speeding you have just to look at one of the school lamp posts that was uprooted from the ground at a result of reckless driving.

To show that the police have uttered no idle threat is the example of Dan Sylvestri, who was arrested for speeding and driving without a license.

Such actions as there are not only unsafe, but give Jefferson a bad name.

The C. S. F. held a sandwich sale Thursday, February 26, and cleared $2.65. It was a complete sellout. The money raised was for the benefit of the drought area sufferers in the Southern states. This may be a small amount, but it represents a commendable spirit on the part of the C. S. F. If every organization would give as much, it would go far in relieving the suffering that now prevails.

ROYAL NEIGHBORS GREET THEIR SUPREME MANAGER

On March 4 the Royal Neighbors Camps from San Francisco and Daly City, with camps from the bay cities, met in Oakland, having as their guests of honor Supreme Manager Mrs. A. Nash, State Deputy Mrs. C. Hamill, and City Supervisor Mrs. E. Groelle.

A fine dinner was served at the House of Crane in Oakland, the tables being beautifully decorated in miniature rainbows and flowers. After dinner the meeting was called to order by the Oracle of the Oakland Camp. Each Bay city camp took part in the opening exercises and welcoming of the honor guests, each being dressed in colors of the rainbow, corresponding with the hall decorations. San Francisco Camps and Daly City gave the ritualistic work in the most beautiful manner to a large class of candidates, after which a short talk was given by Mrs. A. Nash, Mrs. C. Hamill, and Mrs. Grovelle upon the good of the organization of the camp, the value of its benefits, and of the home being built for the aged members.

Those present from Daly City were Mrs. Ann Owen, Mrs. M. Orr, Mrs. L. Nelson, Mrs. J. Jorgensen, Mrs. H. Priziborowski, Mrs. D. Burdick, Mrs. Hedvall and Mrs. Romer.

Mr. and Mrs. Anton Franicevich, of Brunswick street, are receiving the congratulations of their friends upon the birth of a daughter, born on February 16.

WILL ELIMINATE SAN JUAN GRADE

Of utmost importance to motorists who prefer the Coast route is the news received at Monterey by California Mission Trails Association officials that work of the realignment of the Coast highway to eliminate the San Juan grade will begin sometime this spring.

The contract for the million dollar realignment job will be awarded by the State Highway Commission some time this month. Advertisements calling for bids have already started publication.

Construction of the new route will not interfere with traffic on the Coast route for a single day, as the present San Juan routing will continue in use without interruption. The present San Juan route will be continued as a secondary road in the state highway system and will be further improved.

The new cut-off will eliminate sharp grades and turns, and when completed it is estimated it will cut 20 minutes off driving time between San Jose and Salinas.

GENERAL PERSHING P. T. A. HAS INTERESTING SESSION

The regular meeting of the General Pershing Parent-Teachers' Association was held last Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clck, at 622 Hanover street, President Mazie Boyle presiding.

After a short business session the meeting was turned over to the honored guest, Mrs. R. J. Spann, Seventeenth District President, who gave a short and interesting talk. She in turn called upon Mrs. E. Jones, study circle chairman, who also gave a short talk on topics suitable for study circles to take up and study at their meetings. She was followed by Mrs. Cora Hoover, district parliamentarian, who gave an instructive drill on parliamentary law as used in the local Parent-Teachers' Associations.

The next speaker was Mrs. Lillian Landini, district vice-president. Mrs. Landin gave an interesting talk. It was she who donated the lovely birthday cake which was in honor of General Pershing P. T. A.'s second birthday.

The meeting was then turned back to President Boyle, who presented corsages of yellow and purple violets to Mrs. R. J. Spann, Mrs. E. Jones, Mrs. Cora Hoover, Mrs. L. Landini, Mrs. J. Jordan and Mrs. E. C. Boyle. The bouquets were made and donated by Mrs. Nell Cain. Following the presentation of the corsages, a nominating committe was chosen, Mrs. M. Pechenino to be the chairlady.

Four new members joined the association, Mesdames Paff, Armando, Wiley and McDermott. The meeting adjourned to partake of delicious refreshments prepared by Mrs. A. Eason and her assistants.

SERVICES NEXT SUNDAY AT CALVARY BAPTIST CHAPEL

Services at Calvary Baptist Chapel, 5724 Mission street, next Sunday, will be as follows:

Sunday school at 9:45; classes for all ages.

Morning service at 11 o'clock. The sermon by the pastor, Rev. Charles Woessner, will be, "What Prayer Can Mean to a Life."

Baptist Young Peoples' meeting at 7 o'clock.

The evening service begins at 8 o'clock. It will be in the form of a Men's Nite. The men of the church will have complete charge of the service. There will be good music and interesting messages. It will be an evening of worship not soon to be forgotten. Calvary invites your presence at any of these services. If you have never visited us, you have done yourself an injustice.

FIRE BOARD MEETING

The board of Fire Commisisoners held their monthly meeting Monday, March 2. Communications were received from the fire marshal of San Francisco and the clerk of San Mateo county in reference to fireworks and firecracked ordinances. The alarms answered from the various stations were reported for the month of February. The Chief, Assistant Chiefs and Fire Marshal turned in their reports, having filled the chemicals and put them back in place. The manager of the Daly City Theatre has agreed to flash a signal light when the siren sounds, so that firemen seated in the theatre will know the alarm has been sounded.

YOUNG PEOPLE OF GRACE CHURCH SHOW ACTIVITY

The people of Grace Presbyterian enjoyed a special treat in hearing Rev. Frank Dickie tell of his work in China. Although aged 71 years, and with 42 years experience in China, he is still a comparatively young man. After the service the young people formed a refreshment committee composed of Freida Harder, Blodwin Hart, Ruth Smith, and Zelda Gordan, and refreshments were served in the form of tea and coffee and cakes.

On Sunday evening, March 8, at the 7:45 service, the pastor will speak on the text "Give Me Thy Heart." As Moody once said, "It doesn't take much of a man to be a Christain, but it takes all there is of him."

SOMETHING NEW

THE STORY

Hiram Butterworth, miser, decides to leave his fortune to Elmer Clarke, a poor young nephew. He tells Absolom McPeake, his lawyer, of a deal forty years ago in which he swindled a man out of $40,000, and arranges for payment with interest. Butterworth dies suddenly. Through a gossiping telegraph operator the town of Pilarcitos hears of Elmer's fortune before he does. Nellie Cathcart, Elmer's sweetheart, tells him his inheritance is more than a million.

Elmer laughed. "Well, kiss me once more," he pleaded. "Unless a fellow can take a sporting chance he might as well be dead, so I'll take one sporting chance and tell you that I love you, Nellie. I'm crazy about you and I have been for years. I—I—"

"I've suspected this, Elmer." Nellie's face was uplifted to him again. "And I don't see any reason why you've kept it a secret from me when everybody else in town knew it! You old dear! I'm so happy about you I could cry—and I will if you don't let me go."

He let her go—but not until he had heard from her sweet lips an admission that she loved him better than anything or anybody in the whole wide world.

Long after Elmer Clarke, despite the strain and excitement of that momentous day, had fallen into his customary gentle slumber Nellie Cathcart sat before her dressing table, mechanically brushing her hair and thinking. For Nellie could think. Although beautiful she was brainy—the type of woman whom the Creator occasionally fashions seemingly for the express purpose of demonstrating to egotistic man that the hand that rocks the cradle rules the world.

Just now Nellie was thinking that, although nobody, not even Elmer, would ever know it unless she should tell—which she would not do—she, Nellie Cathcart, was really responsible for Elmer Clarke's legacy.

When the First National Bank of Muscatine, Iowa, had written for a report on Elmer Clarke, and old Ansel with a grin had handed her the letter with the suggestion that she had better answer it since she knew more about Elmer Clarke than any girl in town, Nellie had thrilled at the opportunity to write a report calculated to present Elmer in a light which could not possibly fail to impress the valued customer of the Muscatine bank who sought the information.

Old Ansel hadn't the slightest suspicion that this customer was Elmer's queer uncle, but Nellie, who had learned from Elmer all that the latter knew about his crabbed relative, was convinced instantly that Uncle Hiram was about to develop a long-delayed interest in his nephew. With the adroitness of a clever woman she resolved instantly to foster that budding interest by forwarding a report calculated to appeal particularly to the sort of man she believed Uncle Hiram Butterworth to be.

That she had succeeded beyond her wildest expectations she now realized; wherefore, hers was now the quiet joy which comes of a consciousness of a worth-while task put through to a happy and profitable conclusion.

"I do hope it doesn't spoil Elmer," Nellie soliloquized. "There's so much that's fine in Elmer and so little that isn't all man. Still, the receipt of a million dollars by a young man who has never known anything but hard work and sacrifice is apt to cause a mental reflex. Oh, dear, if Elmer should prove silly my heart would break. But he'll not! I know he'll not. . . . Wouldn't it be awful if I ruined Elmer?"

She resolved to marry him as quickly as possible, because she loved him tenderly and it was her duty to protect him from the pitfalls which she could see but which he did not even suspect. Like all women who devotedly love a man, she regarded Elmer as a particularly helpless, innocent, lovable boy, but little removed from the stage wherein he might reasonably be suspected of a tendency to neglect washing his neck and ears.

Eventually she had a good cry over nothing worth weeping about and fell into a troubled slumber.

CHAPTER IV

When Elmer Clarke strolled down town the following morning he found Sam Haskins struggling alone with the Smoke Shoppe and looking very sad and disconcerted. A night's rest and the knowledge that he was not longer dependent upon Mr. Haskins had erased all the irritability which Elmer had felt and manifested the day previous. He was congenitally incapable of holding a grudge. His heart went out now to Sam.

"Good morning, Sam," he cried cheerfully, and swung in behind the cigar counter. "I've been thinking about our silly little tiff yesterday and have come to the conclusion that I can't let you down without notice. I haven't been a millionaire long enough to be hard and disregard the feelings of folks, so get out of my way and let me take charge again while you go forth into the highways and byways and hire my successor."

Sam's harassed countenance lighted up like the Grand canyon of Arizona at sunset. He thrust out his hand. He was embarrassed. "Guess I was a mite hasty myself, Elmer," he admitted.

"Well, we both feel better now," Elmer declared.

Throughout the morning trade was brisk, due to the fact that news had spread around town that the new millionaire was still on duty at the Smoke

"He Hasn't Got the Million Yet, Carlo, Darling."

Shoppe, apparently none the worse for wear. Consequently the citizenry, naively curious, congregated to study Elmer with new interest. Among them was the Clarion reporter, Charley Terrill, who considered this manifestation of democracy of such news value that he sent in a wire story to the United Press association.

The Los Angeles Record printed it in bold-faced type, boxed, on the front page, where it was seen and read that very day by the promoters and bunco steerers who had overlooked the story the day previous. Among the latter was one known to the room clerk of the New Biltmore hotel as Mr. James P. Hutton, a coal baron from Pennsylvania. To the police, however, Mr. Hutton was known as Colorado Charley.

Upon the instant that he read that story, Colorado Charley's eyebrows elevated automatically, which was always a sure indication that he had struck a lead worth following. For two weeks he had been living in luxury at the New Biltmore, in the hope of working an elaborately conceived real estate swindle on a local bank. However, while he had by no means abandoned this enterprise, he had been disturbed of late by an apprehension common to all predatory animals. He believed that he was being watched by a plain man who haunted the hotel lobby and read the same newspaper too long and too thoroughly.

It would be well, therefore, Colorado Charley concluded, in view of his rapidly disappearing fund of ready money, to branch out in some other line of endeavor—one that promised speedy action and equally speedy returns. In the recently created millionaire cigar clerk and pool-hall manager of Pilarcitos he saw a golden prospect and acted immediately.

In response to a telephone message there appeared at his suite within the hour the companion of Colorado Charley's lighter moments—a gorgeous brunette female of perhaps twenty-five summers.

"Well, old thing?" she queried.

Her voice, low and sweet, filled the room like a chord from a violoncello.

"There's game afoot, Mae," the man answered in businesslike tones and handed her the Los Angeles Record with a well-manicured thumb nail indicating the boxed story.

The woman read it and smiled lazily. "He hasn't got the million yet, Carlo darling," she reminded him. "Why waste your little girl friend's fragrance on the desert air?"

"According to this press story he's going to get it, and when he does we'll take it away from him. Nothing could be simpler, Mae. As the proposition unfolds itself to me, your job is to go up to Pilarcitos tomorrow. You will call upon Elmer Clarke at his home, introduce yourself as a Sunday supplement news writer come to interview him so you can write a feature story for an Eastern paper—say the New York American—entitled 'How It Feels to Be Poor Today and a Millionaire Tomorrow.' He will be flattered. Do not confine yourself to a mere interview with him. Have a nice little visit and do your stuff. Mae, if you can't land this poor fish out in the grass there isn't another woman in the world who can."

"Suppose he's already married."

Colorado Charley's white, handsome teeth flashed in a gay smile. "So much the better for our purposes, Mae. The most pitiful thing I know of is a small-town married man in the coils of a lady who threatens trouble if he doesn't divorce the wife of his bosom and marry her. In such situations the settlement is always larger and easier to collect. The man is usually the first to suggest a monetary balm."

The pair stared at each other for a minute. "You will be the coy, sweet, shy, trusting little thing, just breaking in as a newspaper woman, and the success of this interview is going to mean so much to you," Colorado Charley went on glibly. "If he should take you to luncheon and offer you a cocktail, don't take it. If he proffers a cigarette, look horrified. If he suggests a ride in his new automobile, mention the desirability of a chaperon. And for the Lord's sake, dress for the part and act it. You've done it before. After you've won him, get him to write to you, but fight his advances, because you don't want him to think you're after his money."

"But I can't hang around Pilarcitos indefinitely to pull off a play like that, Carlo. I'll have to return here after I've interviewed him."

"Naturally. Meanwhile I'll have rented a modest furnished bungalow here. I'll be your brother. You and I are orphans, living on a modest income. Lure him down here, invite him to the house for dinner and the rest will be as easy as hitting an elephant with a handful of bird shot."

"I hope he won't turn out to be a tightwad, Carlo."

"He won't. Boobs who have learned to caress a dollar bill before they spend it always put on the dog with the first million that's left them. The only money that means anything to anybody is money that's toiled for and accumulated dollar by dollar. That's why money means nothing in our young lives, Mae."

"Sometimes I think we work hard enough for what we get," the girl sighed.

"Oh, but we do not get it dollar by dollar!" he reminded her. "It comes to us in chunks—when it comes."

"So does trouble, Carlo. . . . Well, this does look like an easy job. I'll tackle it."

Colorado Charley rewarded her with a grateful smile, a kiss and a hug and a hundred dollars for expense money.

At noon Elmer Clarke called at Ansel Moody's office. "Well, how's my credit this bright summer day?" he hazarded nonchalantly.

"A-1, Elmer, an' going' up. Bank in Muscatine says their attorneys have read the will an' there ain't a Chinaman's chance to bust it. Thinkin' of borrowin' a little money, Elmer?"

"Why, yes, if you don't mind, Mr. Moody. I'd like to have twenty thousand dollars for, say, a year. It may be that long before the estate is distributed and I'll have to be in Muscatine and traveling back and forth considerably, I dare say."

"Naturally, naturally, Elmer. I understand." The banker pressed a button and Mr. Crittenden entered. "Take Elmer's promissory note for twenty thousand at—well, let's see now, Elmer. The bank's gittin' as high as 10 per cent on chattel mortgages an' 9 per cent on farm mortgages an' 8 per cent on call loans. I reckon we can let you have this for eight an' a half."

"Quite satisfactory, Mr. Moody." It wasn't, really, because Elmer knew he was about to be exploited successfully for the first time, but being a millionaire he concluded not to worry about an extra per cent or two.

Mr. Crittenden made out the note, Elmer signed it and Mr. Crittenden credited the twenty thousand dollars to his account in the bank, entered the deposit in a pass book and with a flourish handed Elmer pass book and pocket check book. Elmer thanked Mr. Moody and Mr. Crittenden and on his way out of the bank was captured by Nellie Cathcart, who carried him off to luncheon at the Palace grill.

"Well, Elmer," said Nellie when they found themselves in the quasi privacy of a booth, "how does it feel the day after? Are you finding your riches a burden?"

"I am not, dear, but a great many people are. A hundred well wishers, advisers and salesmen have visited me this morning. By the way, I've gone back to help Sam out until we can break in a new man."

Nellie beamed upon him. "By the way, I have been the recipient of numerous congratulations myself. The impression appears to be fairly prevalent in Pilarcitos that I am a coheir with you—after a fashion."

Elmer grinned mischievously. "Pilarcitos is a smart town," he admitted. "Where would you care to live, Nellie? In Los Angeles or San Francisco or New York?"

"I take it," Nellie replied, "that you and I are not formally engaged to be married and that a discussion of our future residence would be premature. Or is your query by way of being a proposal?"

"But—Nellie darling—"

"Now, Elmer, I love you to death. I've admitted that twice within twenty-four hours. You're the only man I've ever loved. But I'm not engaged to you."

"Why not?"

"Yesterday I would have replied, 'Because you've never asked me.' Today I say that I've decided not to engage myself to you until you've had ample opportunity to see the world, juggle that million dollars awhile and see what the other girls look like. If you please, Elmer, I'd much prefer to marry you after you've got used to ready money rather than before. Meanwhile I'll continue to love you just as devotedly as if I were wearing a diamond engagement ring as big as a headlight, and in the interim we will not discuss the matter of our future residence. After we're married I'll live wherever you want to live and be quite happy if you are happy, but if I were to be granted a preference—"

"Yes, of course," he interrupted. "That's why I asked the question."

"Brace yourself for a shock, dearest. I'd like to live in Pilarcitos."

"In this jay town! Why, Nellie, you're not serious—really!"

"I am—really. What's wrong with Pilarcitos?"

"Everything. It's dull, quiet, provincial—nothing doing."

"But it's a pretty town, Elmer. I like the rows of locust trees along the sidewalks; I like the pretty bungalows with roses and bougainvillea covering them; I prefer to be a householder, not a cliff dweller; I like a garden and my own little garage, and a big kennel and run for a dog; I like a big shanghai rooster for an alarm clock and I like babies and baby carriages and the kind of mothers who manage their own babies and baby carriages. The country hereabouts is an Eden. God made only one Santa Clara valley. You can have London in the season but I prefer the Santa Clara in bossom time, Elmer."

Man Called as Judge Thought Self Accused

In Germany the common courts are composed of three professional and two "lay" judges chosen like jurors. At a court in Berlin recently the presiding judge noted the uneasy demeanor of one of the lay magistrates. During the proceedings this man sat without any show of interest, looking miserable and casting appealing looks at the state's attorney. When the judge who had to pass the verdict were about to leave the courtroom, the president heard the unpaid magistrate speaking to the police sergeant. He approached and heard to his greatest astonishment, "I dare not go home, sergeant. I dare not tell my wife, who is ill in bed, that I have been found guilty. I have never been in court before; I have all my papers and testimonials with me; I was never asked to show them. Really, I have never done anything against the law in all my life." The judges crowded around, and under peals of laughter the poor lay magistrate was informed that he had not been asked to attend the court as an accused, but had been summoned to do his citizen's duty as a magistrate.

"Stone of Destiny"

Scone, in Perthshire, Scotland, was the site of an old abbey and the place of residence of the early kings of Scotland. It was also the scene of their coronation. A "stone of destiny" was part of the coronation chair. This stone was carried off by Edward I of England in 1296 and placed in Westminster abbey, where it still remains under the coronation chair of the British kings.

Maiden's Revenge

A motorist tried to beat a red light in West End avenue. The policeman signaled to him to draw up to the curb, and then stared at the driver's face.

"I seen ya before, some place," the cop declared. "D' I ever give ya a ticket, maybe? No," he ruminated further, and suddenly his face cleared. "You went to Washington Olving High, din ya? An' acted in the Thanksgiving day play. You was Miles Standish."

The motorist rather shyly admitted all this, and the cop's smile grew broader.

"I knew it!" he roared gleefully. "Don't ya know who I was in that play? I was Priscilla."—The New Yorker.

Frank Von Tesmer, secretary of the 1930 San Diego county Grand Jury, was held in contempt of the Orange county Superior Court by Judge Homer Ames at the end of a case brought by E. L. Freeland, an engineer, to cite the inquisitorial body for published statements. Judge Ames administered a rebuke to Von Tesmer as representative of the jury. Freeland asked that the Grand Jury be cited after it had published a statement warning the San Diego city and county governments to examine closely any claims which might be advanced by engineers for services rendered on water projects which had been abandoned. Freeland possessed such a claim.

California births in 1930 totaled 84,382, an increase of 2884 over the previous year, giving California a rate of 14.7 births per 1000 of population. California's bumper baby harvest figured out by Dr. Giles S. Porter, state health director, gives these interesting figures: Los Angeles boosted its population by 17,958 births, with 7905 in San Francisco; 4173 in Oakland, and 2385 in San Diego. Imperial county, with 1608 births and a rate of 26.2, boasted the highest birth rate of any county in the state, although the majority of births in that section were Mexicans. Madera county, with a rate of 22, was second, while Ventura county's rate of 21.5 was the third highest in the state. Modesto, with a rate of 37.9 had the highest city birth rate, with San Mateo, at 31.5, ranking third, and Ventura, at 21.5, placing among the city leaders. Of the total California births last year, 65,075, or 77 per cent, were white; 14,472, or 17 per cent, Mexican; 2220 Japanese, and 1110 negro births.

A permit has been issued by the Vallejo city council to the Pacific Greyhound Company to erect a modern depot at the corner of York and Sonoma streets. The two buildings on the site will cost $13,500.

The thirtieth anniversary of the Bakersfield-Kern Electric Railway was celebrated at Bakersfield recently. Since February, 1901, when the first street car made its loop of the city, more than 40,000,000 persons have ridden on the electric cars, records reveal.

THE GRAVEYARD OF BUILDINGS

In an article on "The Graveyard of Lost Buildings," Safeguarding America Against Fire states that if all the structures that have been destroyed by fire could be gathered together they would create the largest city in the world. It would go on for uncountable miles—street after street of ruin and desolation.

If it were possible to create this city, it would provide an object lesson in the menace of fire that would never be forgotten. It would show vividly the tragedy of waste that destroys almost half a billion dollars worth of property and ten thousand lives each year.

It may be that one reason for the carelessness most Americans show to fire is the protection afforded by insurance. There is a mistaken notion that insurance can replace, in the absolute sense, what is wasted by carelessness or ignorance. As a matter of fact, nothing can compensate for the indirect results of fire—loss of time, business and employment, tax increases, etc. Nor can a fire insurance policy bring back ruined property any more than life insurance can bring back the dead. Every fire means that the world is so much poorer in raw materials.

Perhaps the greatest aid to successful fire prevention is better building construtcion. In many communities building laws fail to take consideration of new hazards that have appeared in recent years. It should be remembered that the highest possible construction standards are, in the long run, always the cheapest.

Anthony Miercjewski, of New Britain, Conn., was fined $10 for re-enacting with his wife a moving picture scene in which the wife couldn't get along with her husband.

When Jacob Ganz, of Lynn, Mass., discovered that his automobile was ablaze, he hopped into the driver's seat, drove to the nearest fire station, and had the flames extinguished.

Chicago mayorality candidates are calling one another liars and crooks. We hate to dispute the word of any of these prominent gentlemen.

BEWARE OF DRASTIC MEASURES

All manner of schemes are being proposed in our states to rid the highways of reckless drivers, reduce automobile accidents, and provide financial compensation for innocent victims. These problems must be solved, according to the Baltimore Sun, "through adoption of moderate measures. Drastic enactments . . do not work out satisfactorily. There is agreement that a way should be found to compensate victims of reckless automobilists, but there is widespread diversity of opinion how best to do it. Compulsory insurance has been tried and found unworkable. In consequence, attention is being directed in many states to the possibility of meeting the situation gradually by the strengthening of laws aimed at the motorists who are responsible for accidents."

The law to revoke the licenses of financially irresponsible and reckless drivers is receiving much support, as is the law requiring rigid examinations of all motorists. This last is believed to be of especial value in promoting safety. During the past two years, out of each 100,000 population, twenty-five have been killed and 815 injured by automobiles, and in most states the accident rate is rising. At the same time estimates show that states now requiring strict drivers' examinations have reduced their death rate 29 per cent, which means that this single precaution results in saving the lives of seven out of each 100,000 of our people.

In many states the automobile accident problem is being approached from the right angle—that of impartial investigation. Officials should get the facts and then act. The reckless and incompetent must be outlawed from the highways.

It doesn't pay to be fussy about one's traffic rights with a ten-ton truck on the port bow.

The new compass which points to diamonds and gold should be helpful to the night club ladies.

Those who decry vocal training are remined that a singer won a hog-calling contest in Illinois.

THE UNEMPLOYMENT PROBLEM

It is reported that twenty-eight of the state legislatures now in session have bills pending for the establishment of unemployment insurance, involving a total expenditure of some $750,000,000.

While the plans proposed in the different states vary somewhat in details, in general they contemplate the imposition of a permanent state tax upon all taxable property, this tax to be duplicated by contributions from employers. Those opposed to the plan declare that "Naturally provision is made for the usual boards, bureaus and other administrative personnel under political management, which will thus become new agencies for spending public moneys along lines most productice of political results."

Not to be outdone by the states, the Federal government would also engage in unemployment insurance, if bills now before Congress are enacted into law. And again, the opponents of the proposed measure has objections similar to those advanced against the proposed state measures. All thinking people are convinced that something should be done to prevent suffering among the unfortunate ones who are unable to secure sustaining employment, and hope the problem may be solved to the satisfaction of all concerned.

RAT DAMAGE ENORMOUS

Damage by rats to produce and property amounts to two hundred million dollars annually in the United States, according to an estimate by the Secretary of Agriculture of North Dakota, who recommends the waging of a constant and relentless campaign against this pest.

Measures recommended include the keeping of waste food and garbage in covered containers until destroyed; preventing accumulations of trash and refuse; making corn-cribs and granaries rat-proof, and adopting any means whereby the supply of rat food may be reduced.

Among the means for destroying rats, and most effective, is poisoning, for which purpose government experts recommend powdered barium carbonate, which is inexpensive and has the added advantage of being odorless and tasteless, therefore more readily eaten by the rodents when it is applied to their bait. Care must be taken, of course, that it is not placed in the way of children or domestic animals. When poison can not be used, trapping is suggested as the next best method to be employed.

In addition to the property destruction they cause, rats tend to spread disease, and from every standpoint they are an unmitigated nuisance. A nation-wide rat exetrmination campaign might be considered as an aid to unemployment.

CIRCUS QUEEN IS DEAD

Seldom has the death of an entertainer been followed by more extended notice in the newspapers of the world than that of Lillian Leitzel, acknowledged queen of all cirucs stars, which occurred in Copenhagen, Denmark, a few days ago, as the result of a fall while doing her aerial act in a music hall.

In both news and editorial columns the international popularity of the dainty little trapeze artist was featured, and genuine sorrow over her tragic death was expressed. For over twenty years she had thrilled circusgoers of America and Europe by her daring and skill.

Her death was due to no waning of that skill, but to the breaking of a trapeze ring. She fell some 40 feet to the floor covered only by a rubber mat, receiving injuries to her spine and head. Mortally hurt, she made light of the accident and was taken to a hospital over her protests. Later she lapsed into delirium and died two days after her fall.

Miss Leitzel traveled for years with Barnum and Bailey and other American circuses, and her brilliant performances were applauded by hundreds of thousands who never knew her name. Her death at the age of 37 is a distinct loss to the amusement-loving world.

TEACH CHILDREN KINDNESS

By G. KENDALL.

This teaching kindness to animals may seem a simple thing; but the more one looks into its merits the more penetrating this spiritualizing influence proves to be, causing a change of conduct, inspiring justice and compassion in the place of selfisness and cruelty; training the mind to apprehend, and the heart to sympathize with the needs of the lowly creatures who form the theoretical object lesson of such surpassing interest to the young; obviously the "protecting sympathy" which a child may be taught to feel towards the helpless dumb companion, may in after years inspire the life of the philanthropist.

How much such teaching is needed is demonstrated by the incredibly cruel deeds perpetrated by children even of tender years, which calls forth neither remonstrance nor reproof from parent or guardian.

Dr. Murray Butler declares that there are no great men living today. And now our State Department my have to make another apology because a Butler was indiscreet.

A FAMOUS SLAVE CASE

As the United States prepares to co-operate with the League of Nations commission in abolishing vestiges of slavery in Liberia, and as the League is informed that 5,000,000 inhabitants of the world are in bondage today, the French people claim with pride that their country was the first in Europe to have chattel slavery declared by a court to be unlawful. From Paris comes the story of the case.

Denmark was the first European nation to declare by legislative act that all human beings on its soil were free. That was in 1792, and the law took effect ten years later. But the legal case of John Boucaux, who was set free by a French court in the time of Louis XV, came a half century earlier.

Boucaux had been brought to France from Martinique, in the West Indies, by a Monsieur de Verdelin, whom the negro served as a cook. Remarking finally that he was in a free country, Boucaux demanded wages. His master's reply was to have him put in the prison of the Chatelet, at Paris. Boucaux was liberated after three days, there being no law to fit his case, and he thereupon sued his master for ten years' arrears of wages.

Since he came from a French colony, the suit had to be heard by the judges of the Admiralty court, who were compelled to detain him nearly three months while they considered what their decision should be. It was a victory for Jean Boucaux, who was declared to have been "free from the moment he stepped on French soil and to be a free man from now on."

WAR WIDOWS OF 1812

Ten women are still on the pension rolls as a result of the War of 1812, according to a report from Washington. Nine are widows of veterans and one is a daughter. Ages of the widows range from 71 to 90 years, while the daughter is 73. Their pensions average $48 per month.

They are: Arminia Anderson, Cedar Grove, Ga.; Marion Clark, Iowa City, Iowa; Mary Coleman, Claudeville, Va.; Lydia Graham, Brushy Run, Va.; Mary Isgrigg, Cincinnati, Ohio; Caroline King, East Aurora, N. Y.; Emma Mann, Greenbrush, Mass.; Mary Williams, Philadelphia, Pa.; Elizabeth Huron, Indianapolis, Ind., widows; and Esther Morgan, Independencce, Ore., daughter.

Thus Uncle Sam is not quite finished paying for a war that ended more than 116 years ago. Actual veterans were on the pension roll more than 90 years after the war, the last one, Hiram Cronk, of Ava, N. Y., having died in 1905 at the age of 105.

It is extremely probable that pensions on account of the World war will continue to be paid a hundred years from now, reaching a total of no telling how many billions of dollars in the meantime.

Even from a financial standpoint, and not considering the loss of life and suffering, war is not profitable to any nation.

BEST FOUND FIRST

Among the amazing developments of the last half century is the growth of the oil industry, which was an entirely insignificant enterprise fifty years ago.

The first commercial oil well was drilled near Titusville, Pa., in 1859, a small producer only 69½ feet deep. This earliest well was relatively unimportant in comparison with the gushers of recent years, some of which reach a depth of more than a mile and a half, and have a daily output of more than a hundred thousand barrels.

At first crude oil was used principally in the manufacture of kerosene, the elements from which gasoline is now produced being discarded as worthless. But gradually a variety of useful products were developed, of which gasoline is now by far the most important.

A strange fact in connection with the development of the oil industry is that while hundreds of oil fields have been discovered, none have been found which equals in quality the product of the earliest Pennsylvania wells and those producing throughout the Pennsylvania grade area today.

NARROW ROADS A MENACE

The model rural roadway will have a paved surface at least eighteen feet wide, will be waterproof, and will be usable at all times of the year and under all weather conditions.

The National Conference on Street and Highway Safety is authority for the statement that eighteen feet is the minimum safe width. In many farming sections there is a good deal of traffic, moving at fairly high speeds. Under such circumstances, narrow roads become a menace to the life and property of all who use them. Going off the pavement of a country road may mean an overturned car, as road shoulders, particularly in rainy seasons, are often untrustworthy.

Those communities which are building narrow farm-to-market roads in order to "save" money have a mistaken idea of economy. Full width, long-lived roads, of modern materials, can be built cheaply and maintenance costs are likewise low. Every improved farm road should be designed with a view to accommodating not only the traffic of the immediate present, but that of the future. Any other course of procedure causes waste and needless expense in the long run.

SWAN CUTS OFF PHONES, LIGHTS, AND LIFE AS WELL

One of the swans that winter in the Alvarado salt marshes has gone where bad swans go—and his passing caused no little grief among the residents of that part of Alameda county. It wasn't that they cared particularly about the swan; only he cut off their lights and telephones just as he was passing on. He tried to fly between some power lines and short-circuited the line. One wire fell across a near-by telephone line and put both services out of commission for a time.

It seems that no one has thought of a taxpayers' relief bill.

LINEMAN SAVES BOYS AND GIRLS' HOME FROM FLAMES

Thanks to timely action by Frank H. Badger, lineman in the P. G. & E. Company's North Bay division, the Salvation Army Boys' and Girls' Home at Lytton was saved from destruction by fire a few nights ago.

Badger was on his way to Asti on a trouble job wehen he noticed the gymnasium ablaze. He drove into the campus, woke up the staff and the youngsters, and, while they were getting dressed, prevented the fire from spreading to the cottages. The gymnasium was beyond hope when Badger arrived, but Brigadier W. G. White, superintendent of the home, gives him credit for saving the rest of the establishment, and wrote the company "to express how deeply grateful we are for the wonderful service he rendered in connection with our serious fire calamity."

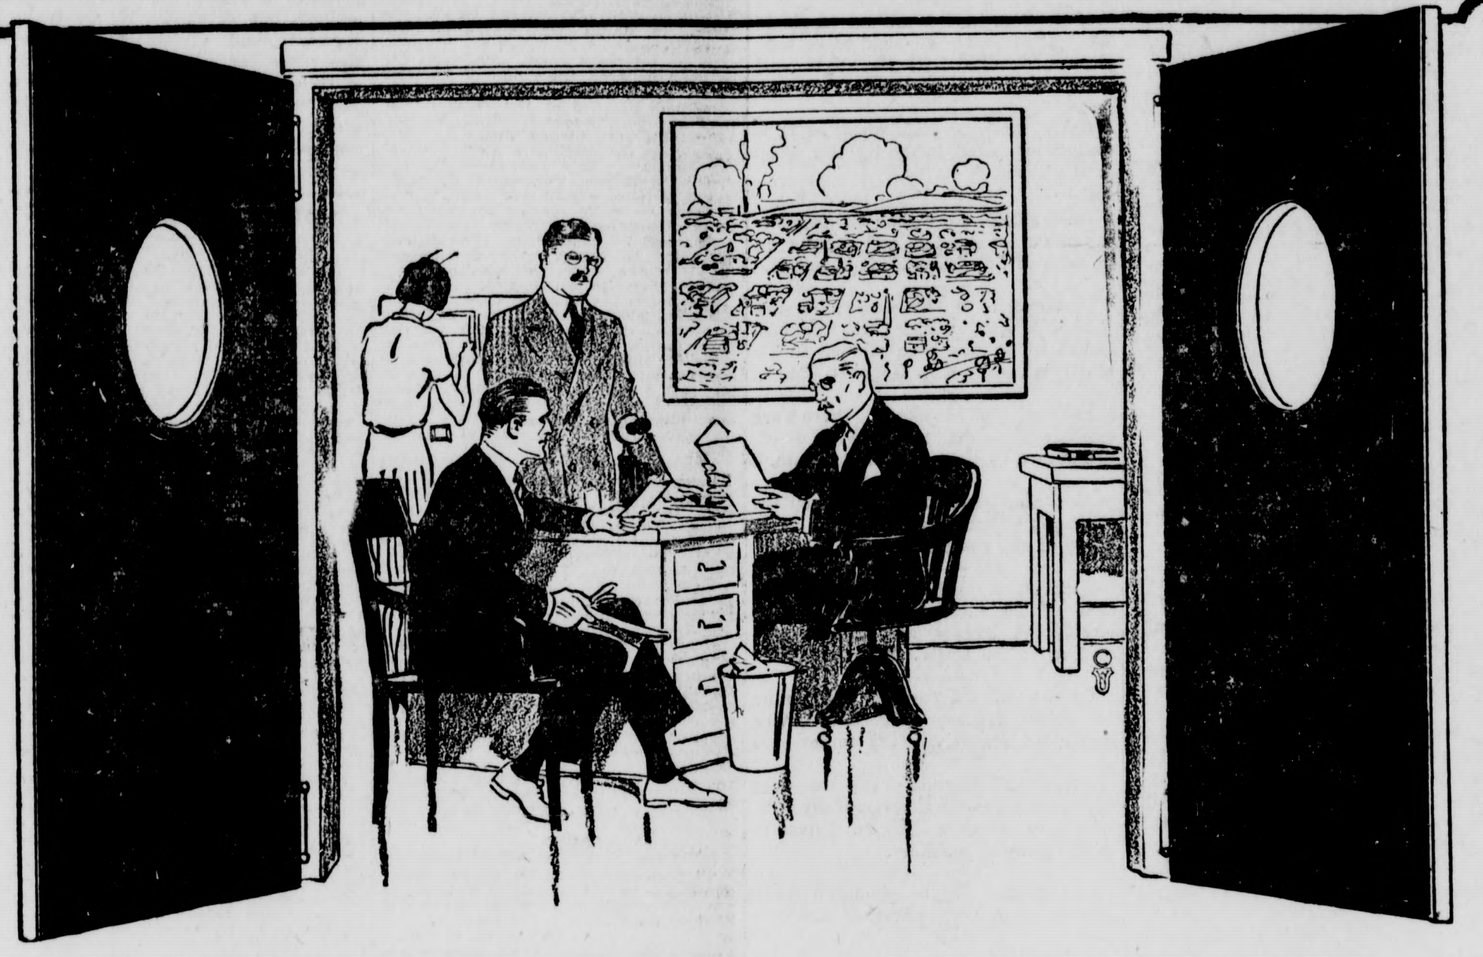
Civic and Commercial Clubs



Today, more than ever, communities appreciate the value of the wonderful and necessary work being accomplished by efficiently working Civic and Commercial clubs.

They represent one of the most important and intricate cog wheels in the great machinery of a STANDARD, PROGRESSIVE COMMUNITY!

Too much cannot be said of the cultural and literary influences of the various Civic clubs. No accurate measure coud ever be taken of the influence for good that is done by the Women's and Mother's clubs. A healthy, religious community is often made so largely through the influences of its Charitable and Religious organizations.

The united effort and efficient operation of these clubs help to provide the moral and mental "tone" of a community. THEY KEEP US ABREAST OF THE TIMES!

Nor do we appreciate always the value of the Commercial clubs to the business morale of our town. It is through the Commercial clubs, greatly, that communities maintain a HIGH STANDARD OF BUSINESS AND CREDIT. They furnish much of the DRIVE and the PURPOSE that unites our community for higher standards of living; growth; progress and prosperity.

THE CIVIC AND COMMERCIAL CLUBS OF OUR COMMUNITY NEED OUR LOYAL AND CONSISTENT HELP AND CO-OPERATION.

They are doing much toward the extension of our social and business area to take in the "Greater Community" that should be an integral part of US!

Let's see that the Civic and Commercial clubs of our community go forward with OUR help, in the important task of uniting us closer to our "Greater Community" in

FISH AND GAME NOTES

By J. H. NEUSTADT

Hunters and anglers had better watch their "sights" and "hooks" from now on, because the game wardens are all taking a real course in law.

Several volumes of "Criminal Investigation" have just been purchased by the Division of Fish and Game for the course. These books are being distributed, and every warden will be required to have a knowledge of the work.

Such a course is designed to increase the efficiency and judgment of the deputies as well as to give added interest in this branch of the service. From first indications it is a very popular move.

While it is not the intention of the division to try to make "lawyers" out of the patrol force, officials feel that a fast growing hunting and fishing population stresses the need for such a light, general course.

Patients in Missouri's six state hospitals and institutions are now finding health and happiness in learning a new occupation—raising wild game.

Pens and coops for raising bobwhite quail and pheasants have been erected at each institution, officials of the Missouri Game and Fish Department have informed the American Game Protective Association, and patients whose health permits light outdoor work find pleasant relief from hospital routine in caring for the birds.

Physicians at the hospital have commended the plan for its effect upon the mental and physical health of the patients, and for supplying them with training which many of them may wish to profit by when released from the hospital. At the same time, the state is assured of a steady supply of game for restocking gameles areas.

The California Division of Fish and Game is "checkerboarding" the state with a system of quail sanctuaries on private farms. Five hundred of these refuges have been established by permission of the owners, and suitable plans made for feeding, watering and protecting the birds from predatory animals.

In many instances the farmers themselves are carrying on the necessary work. With game increasing in these shelters, hunting privileges bringing the farmers a fair income from surrounding property will follow as an easy and natural step, the Division declared in a report to the American Game Protective Association.

Farmers desirous of joining in this laudable work and thereby adding to their own finances also, can get full information and assistance by attending any meeting of the San Mateo County Fish and Game Protective Association.

State game protectors of New York have turned hunters, and are competing now for the honor of the deadlicst score with shotgun and trap.

Their hunting, however, should have the enthusiastic approval of all the song birds and small game, say officials of the American Game Protective Association, since the game protectors' hunting is of the kind which protects desirable wild life instead of decerasing it.

The quarry of the state game protectors consists only of those birds and animals which prey upon the more desirable species, such as lynxes, bobcats, weasles, house rats, sharp-shinned hawks. The competitive warfare on predatory animals and birds was initiated by Inspector Hamlin's division of the conservation department, comprising seven countries, and in the seven months since the contest began the state protectors have destroyed 4,466 predatory birds and animals.

Predatory animals are the nemesis of wild life propagation, so why not begin an agitation to arm our California state and volunteer wardens to do likewise.

The African boabab is considered the oldest species of tree in the world, there being one specimen found estimated to be 5,700 years old.

VALUE OF SIGNALLING STRESSED BY CAMPAIGN

"The man behind can't read your mind—SIGNAL!"

With this terse phrase sounding the keynote, the California Committee on Public Safety is conducting a state-wide campaign among motorists this month in an effort to bring about increased care in the giving of hand signals. In announcing this subject for the March safety drive, Senator Arthur H. Breed, chairman of the committee, said:

"One of the greatest insurers against accidents upon the highways is the giving of proper signals by motorists, thereby warning other drives when a stop or turn is about to be made.

"Some motorists apparently expect others to anticipate, for no reason at all, when a stop or change of direction is contemplated. Such an unwarranted assumption and the failure to give timely signals as provided by law form one of the leading causes of traffic accidents.

"Motorists should realize that they are required to give signals at least fifty feet before they stop or start to turn, the left arm and hand pointing upward for a right turn, horizontally for a left turn, and in a downward position for a stop."

The law requires that signals shall be made in such a way that they are clearly visible, it is pointed out by the legal department of the California State Automobile Association, which is assisting the committee in its work. This means that the hand must be extended far enough outside the car to be seen at a considerable distance and that the signal must be made in a definite and unmistakable manner.

Educational effort among motorists regarding the importance of proper signals is occupying the first ten days of the month. A period of intensified enforcement will then be commenced by state and local traffic police.

NON-FRAGILE GLASS NOW MADE FROM NATURAL GAS

Glass made from natural gas is the latest accomplishment of the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research in Pittsburgh. The new material is called "vinylite." It is not fragile, like ordinary glass, and is said to permit the ultra-violet rays of the sun to penetrate it. Samples displayed by the institute include beautifully tinted ornamental boxes molded from the new glass.

ABOUT WOMEN

Although it was her first jump, Alyce Rahman, of San Francisco, stepped out of a plane 4,000 feet in the air, pulled her parachute cord, and floated down to a perfect landing.

Miss Vivian I. Miller, city manager of Kinsley, Kansas, is said to be the only woman holding such a position in the United States.

Mrs. Anna Tillinghast, the first woman appointed to the office of commissioner of immigration for the port of Boston, recently received reappointment for four more years by President Hoover.

Miss Reenee Ordee, of New York, is touring the world by motorcycle as far as possible. She has chugged across the United States and has taken a liner for England.

Mme. Schumann-Heink is one of the world's greatest and most beloved singers, and has sung for benefits in almost every city in the world.

Judge Theresa Meikle s San Francisco's first woman judge in charge of the women's department of the municipal court.

Mrs. Josephine Syrina Samantha Elizabeth Evaline Martini Ida Iescre Carroll Morgan, of Orient, Illinois, is believed to have the longest name of any woman in the United States.

In gratitude for her valient services to combatants during the World war, Princess Alexandrine Cantacuzene was chosen to fill the highest woman's post in the European Veterans' Association.

Miss Beulah Costello, of Gary, Ind., is said to be the only woman boxing promoter and manager in the Middle West.

Miss Elaine St. Maur, of Hollywood, who has had her hands insured for $150,000, is in great demand by sculptors and artists, who affirm hers are the most beautiful hands in the United States.

Holding seat number one in the North Carolina state legislature this session and being the only woman member of the house, Mrs. B. F. Mebane, of Spray, N. C., enjoys the distinction of heading the house committee on charity and welfare agencies.

Rev. Ethel Duncan, evangelist of Long Beach, who broadcasts many of her sermons to a nation-wide audience, is said to receive more personal mail than any other individual in the Western part of the country.

Mrs. John Armstrong, of Ponca, Neb., recently celebrated her 108th birthday by cooking a birthday dinner for twenty guests.

Dr. Lillian M. Gilbreth, who is a consulting engineer, has been called to Washington to assist Col. Arthur Woods in the unemployment problem.

Dr. Amy L. Whaley, of Pomeroy, Ohio, who recently celebrated her her 92nd birthday, is believed to be oldest practicing woman dentist in America.

Mrs. Elizabeth C. White, who owns and operates the world's largest cranberry bog, raised 76,000 bushels of berries on her 600-acre farm at Whitesboro, N. J., last year.

Berlin's first labor judge was Dr. Edith Klausner, whose public services and remarkable training eminently fitted her for the position.

Mary McRae Lucas, of Marion, S. C., is leading her sex into a new industry, as she has specialized in typography and has also acted as chief designer for several book publishers.

Miss Natalie Hays Hammond, who is very skilled in painting and wood carving, has incorporated her own company in New York City which will control her patent to metalize fabrics or any kind of objects.

Passengers who ride over Eastern Air Transport lines between New York and Atlanta find the trip made more pleasant by Miss Wanda Wood, who is the first aerial hostess in the country.

The only American woman to receive the Victoria cross is Dr. Adelaide Woodward, of Washington, who divides her time among many countries.

The work of Mrs. Kaufman Raud, of Pittsburgh, in the development of Swedish and Norwegian singers was recognized by award of a gold medal from the King of Norway.

Miss Ann Caywood recently retired as a telegrapher for the New Haven railroad at Milford, Conn., after 45 years of continuous service, during which time she missed but one day from duty.

A piece of tpestry woven by Mrs. Aashild Feroy won for her first prize in a national exhibition at Bergen, Norway, and a medal presented by the king himself.

OLD FAVORITES COMING TO THE GAIETY THEATRE

It is announced that the always popular Del S. Lawrence is bringing his dramatic organization to the Gaiety Theatre, the cozy new playhouse located on Sutter near Filmore street, San Francisco. He will inagurate his 1931 season next Sunday night, March 8. Several members of the company, which is known as the Del S. Lawrence Players, are favorably known in San Francisco, having appeared at various theatres, including the Alcazar, Tivoli, President, and others. Miss Florence Printy, former leading lady at the Republic Theatre and at the Wigwam Theatre, and just returned from a tour of the Orient, with the Wilbur players, has been engaged as leading lady. Miss Printy has a large following in San Francisco. Taylor Graves, formerly of the Henry Duffy players, and Joseph Kemper are also in the cast. Miss Aline Nathan, the well known local actress and accomplished artist of high standing, has been engaged as second leading lady. Miss Inez Bauer, late of A. H. Wood's New York productions, has been engaged as character woman. And of course everyone remembers Del H. Lawrence and his long and successful years at the head of the Wigwam Stock Company in the Mission and other theatres in San Francisco.

Mr. Lawrence has selected for the opening the well known comedy drama success, "The Makin' of Maggie Muldoon." Arrangements have been made for many other plays to follow.

OPERATOR STAYED AT POST DURING HOSPITAL FIRE

During a fire in the St. John's hospital in Long Island City, N. Y., Miss Mary O'Keefe, telephone operator, stayed at the switchboard, handling the vital calls to the fire and police departments and the interdepartmental calls relating to the safety of patients. Such calm was maintained throughout the hospital that an operation which had been started just as the fire broke out was successfully completed.

The fire started in the basement directly under the telephone switchboard. The flames caused an explosion which spread them to materials giving forth clouds of smoke. Miss O'Keefe, exhausted from smoke and suffocation, became on of the patients after the fire had been checked.

"Rufus, did you go to your lodge meeting last night?"

SIDELIGHTS

A tip for timid business men is given by Publisher Curtis of the Saturday Evening Post, wso spent a million dollars for advertising last year and will sped double that amount during 1931. He says: "In a period of depression we must run as fast as we can to stay where we are."

Educated toes enabled Mr. Charles Mathews, of Northumberland, Pa., to save her 4-year-old daughter from burning to death. When the child's clothing caught fire, Mrs. Mathews, who has no arms, stripped the blazing garments off with her toes. This was not difficult for her, as she makes a specialty of even harder feats as a circus performer.

Falling fifteen stories would upset the appetite of most persons permanently. In the case of Guiseppe Zavarano, of Brooklyn, who obeyed the law of gravity to that extent, it had only a temporary effect, if a press dispatch is to be believed. Two days later he took light nourishment in the form of a planked stake, four eggs, spaghetti, assorted vegetables, chicken, lobster salad, mince pie and three cups of coffee.

Al Demaree, who digs up interesting sport items of bygone days, tells how Charley Moran, pitching for Nashville Academy against Vanderbilt University, once struck out nine men in one inning, a world's record. Yet in that inning Vanderbilt scored six runs. The explahation is that Moran's catcher let six third strikes get by him.

A woman in Sturgis, Mich., found a novel use for her vacuum cleaner, but caused a neighborhood row over it. She kept the motor running during the evening hours because its purring soothed her baby to sleep. Neighbors complained that this mechanical lullaby interfered with their radio reception and she was forced to substitute vocal crooning for the more modern method which she had discovered.

A good many fear that Lindbergh will fly once too often and meet with disaster. Still one can never tell what may happen, or how. Bobby Leach went over Niagara Falls in a barrel unharmed, and later slipped on an orange peel in the street, receiving injuries which caused his death.

Hold-ups and practical jokes do not go well together. At least they made a fatal combination for Ernest Fields, of St. Louis, a former soda dispenser, who had turned bandit. Fields held up and robbed eleven persons in a drug store and then made them each drink a soda which he served them. While playing his little prank four policemen arrived and shot him to death when he offered resistance.

A mending paste said to withstand washing and ironing has been invented for use in patching garments.

SPRING STYLES IN DRESSES FASCINATE

Bountiful choices in the latest modes offered at the Polly Ann Smart Shop in the Daly City Theatre building has brought a steady call for the carefully selected ready-to-wear attire. As time goes on the store is deservedly becoming more and more the fashion center of this section. Service is much above the ordinary, and every effort is made to satisfy each succeeding customer.

An experienced sales force has the knack of suggesting a "buy" that is almost bound to please, not only the fair purchaser but all the folks at home, no small matter in getting clothes. The dresses are mostly of crepe and in all the most popular colors. Some have sleeves, others sleeveless, to suit the individual taste.

Beige is still a particular favorite for various types of garments, as for some time past. So far there is no tendency to switch from beige. Even when there is a combination, beige is likely to come in it, with brown, for example.

"Will beige never lose its hold on women?"

Style experts, and such are the Polly Ann salespeople, point out there is not the slightest indication that such a thing will happen.

SPLINTERS

From the H. H. Smith Lumber Yard

VOLUME 4 FRIDAY, MARCH 6, 1931 NUMBER 32

Published in the interests of the People of Daly City and vicinity by H. H. Smith and Employees.

Had Him "Buffaloed"

"Does you take this woman for thy lawfully wedded wife?" asked the colored parson, glancing at the diminutive, watery-eyed, bowlegged groom, who stood beside 210 pounds of feminine assurance.

"Ah takes nothin'," gloomily responded the bridegroom. "Ah's bein' tooked."

Paint and Paint Brushes.

Easy

Van Jay: "I wish I could find out just how many relatives I have here on this earth."

Van Puf: "Why, that's the easiest thing in the world. Just buy a summer cottage."

Orthodox Believer

Social Worker: "Do you believe in transmigration of souls?"

Fisherman: "No, sir. I likes 'em fried in the ordinary way."

A Sure Cure

Dusty Ike: "Lady, would you please give me a cake of soap?"

Mrs. Homebody: "What! Do you mean to say that you want soap?"

Dusty Ike: "Yes, ma'am. My partner's got the hiccups and I want to scare him."

Shumite Plaster Board.

Perplexing Problem

Dorothy (aged 4): "Please God, make it stop raining, so's we can go to the party tomorrow."

Margaret (aged 6): "Please God, don't take any notice of her. Make it rain so's mummy'll take us in a taxi."

The Reason

"Say, Mom, was baby sent down from heaven?"

"Yes, son."

"I guess they like to have things quiet up there, huh, mom?"

Why not try our ABERDEEN COAL. It's best by test.

There's the Scotchman that waited for an eclipse in order to get night telegraph rates in the daytime.

Jane, six years old, was out for a ride in the country. She saw a swamp where cattails were growing.

"Oh, daddy," she exclaimed. "Look at the hot-dog garden."
